The purpose of the chiropractic is to restore and maintain the flow of nerve energy along the spinal cord and its nerve roots. Tiny misalignments of the spinal bones can interfere with the flow to this nerve energy. Interference to nerve energy flow may disrupt the proper activity of various organs, muscles or body parts.

The only goal of the chiropractor is to correct spinal misalignments (called vertebral subluxations). This restores the flow of nerve energy so that the parts of the body may have a more normal nerve energy supply.

With a proper nerve supply, health can improve. In some people, symptoms may clear up quickly. In others, the process is slower. Unfortunately, in some people, there is only partial healing – or none at all.

Regardless of what the disease or condition is called, the chiropractor does not offer to heal or treat it. Nor does the chiropractor offer advice regarding the treatment of disease. Our only goal is to allow the body to do its job. Our only method is the correction of the subluxation. We promise no cure from and offer no treatment of disease.

I have read the above, understand it fully and undertake chiropractic care on this basis.
